

The privacy of the corner patio and garden is enhanced by the gently sloping surrounding grounds.

Handsome brick walls and geometric brick roads and pathways evoke the ambiance of a stately turn of the century enclave. The brick arch on the left leads to a picturesque community pool.

Antique and contemporary furnishings both fit nicely in the bright, open interior with new and old architectural accents.

Bishops Park is home to many households who downsized from homes in nearby historic neighborhoods and others wanting a sylvan alternative to stark vertical condos.

The covered brick patio opens to both the living/family room and master bedroom. The solid door leads to the storage space.

A first floor bonus is a narrow garden with a southwesterly orientation.

The enclosed garden extends alongside the master bedroom windows

A mix of old and newer deciduous trees provides shade in summer.

The master bedroom opens to the patio and overlooks the side garden.
