List Price: $768,000

This grand home is grandly sited on a 0.4 acre lot that includes a professionally maintained rose garden and a 22x18 ft garage.

Located in the heart of Cameron Park, a wooded oasis surrounded by NC State University, St. Mary's girl school, Cameron Village (with the Raleigh central library), and the Glenwood entertainment district. Museums and state offices are a short walk away.

A symphony of light describes the play of sun and shadow through the window-walled rooms, beginning with the glass enclosed portico.

Amplly proportioned grand rooms invite parlor concerts, Thanksgiving feasts, quiet reflection.

A constellation of rooms, one flowing into another, describes this remarkably versatile and practical floor plan. Original plans are available drawn by the architect, H. E. Satterfield.

The east facing library/study conveniently is connected through a back hall to the kitchen and outdoors.

Professional photographer, amateur aviatrix and passionate parachutist are among the past pursuits of the seller, Georgia White, whose grandfather, the founder of White Dairy in 1911, built the house beginning in 1914.

Truly a sun room, one of two at either end of the house, this at the south end.
