

The corner cafe in the Palladium Condo building which shares the Blount and Davie intersection with Artspace and Founders Row.

Further up Davie St, Clyde Coopers Barbeque was featured in the NYT Times Travel section, 36 Hours in Raleigh, early in March 2014.

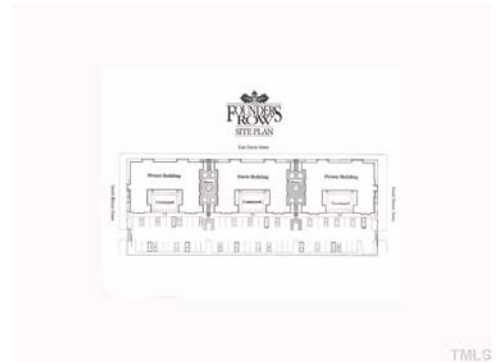

The Red Hat entrance is across Davie St from Coopers. Looking back toward Artspace and Founders Row, the banners celebrate the Moore Square Park which is the next block north of Artspace.

Artspace shares its block with the historic City Market, home to a coffee shop, restaurants, shops and offices. The sun does shine in Raleigh.

This is a pop up view from the original 1980s brochure. A copy of the brochure is included in the mls Docs.

The three Founders Row buildings are named after the founding fathers of Raleigh for whom the surrounding streets are named, Blount, Davie and Person. Each building has a green courtyard and the three buildings are separated by two brick paved courtyards.
