

The 0.24 acre arboretum like lot is nestled in the middle of an urban brick bungalow heaven. A handsome low standing stone wall borders the hidden long concrete drive. See pic below showing the big front porch.

A back deck overlooks raised planting beds and green lawn leading to the newer shed in back. The back yard is one gate away from being entirely fenced

Breathtaking openness greets you as you enter from the big front porch with broken terrazzo tile.

The extraordinary kitchen was enlarged in the last year. Also recently new - roof, dual fuel heat pump with gas furnace backup, ductwork, windows except in bath.

Butcher block counter tops, skylight and triple-window make this a one-of-a-kind space.

The kitchen opens to a bright utility room leading to the deck and back yard.

The butcher block island is moveable.

Hard woods sparkle in all but the kitchen and bath.

The view from the hall leading to the bedrooms.

Both south facing bedrooms catch sunlight throughout the day.

Note on the floor plan how a double bed can be tucked away allowing additional space for shelves and a desk.

Bright and modern, the bath includes tile floors and surrounding walls.

Check back for a list of the various flowering trees and evergreens found throughout the property.

A low standing stone wall borders the long concrete driveway.

The broken terrazzo tile front porch includes a ceiling fan, as do each of the major rooms inside.

The yard includes neat niches and raised planter beds.

Add a gate on the driveway side of the house and the back yard will be fully fenced.

The nearby Oakwood Dog Park offers an alternative play space for your pets.

The PieBird is one of many nearby restaurants and shops that are part of the seamlessly connected Oakdale, Mordecai and Historic Oakwood neighborhoods.

Walk or bike downtown. This is the view from the new NC AIA Center for Architecture and Design looking south past the state government offices, legislative building, museums, old Capitol to the private office and residential towers along Fayetteville St.
